Senator Connally Predicts Approval Of New United Nations Charter

Says Republicans and Democrats Alike in the U. S. Senate Will Support It

By DOUGLAS B. CORNELL
SAN FRANCISCO, June 22. (AP)—Senator Connally (D-Calif.) today predicted that the Senate will ratify the new United Nations charter "with a comfortable margin over the necessary two-thirds."

"This will be true," Connally declared in a statement, "because of the non-political support of the charter."

"Republican and Democrats will support it. That has been the constant policy of the foreign relations committee for the last three years."

"We believe that partisan politics should end at the water's edge." Assurances of prompt British action on the charter drafted here at the United Nations conference came today from the United Kingdom delegation.

Quarterly estimates in American quarters here are that it probably will take at least eight weeks or until early September to get a final Senate vote on ratification.

While leaders here have no definite plans pending conferences with Senate chiefs in Washington and administration leaders, it is expected that hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations committee will be started around July 10 to 15; that they will last about two weeks, and will be followed by a month of debate in the Senate.

Connally and Sen. Vandenberg (D-Mich.) are flying back to Washington Tuesday night after the conference close, and will make immediate reports to the Senate. Connally on Thursday, and Vandenberg on Friday.

As chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, Connally said in his statement today, "I shall, as soon as Senator Vandenberg and I reach Washington, call a meeting of the committee for the purpose of discussing and determining the most practicable means to secure speedy action in the committee and the floor to secure ratification of the charter."

"Of course, the leadership of both sides must be consulted. We are anxious for speedy action but realize the necessity for reasonable consideration in the committee, and opportunity for debate on the floor."

Strike Leaders To Ignore WLB

AKRON, O., June 22. (AP)—Strike leaders at five closed Goodyear Tire and Rubber Company plants notified the government tonight that they refused to appear in Washington Saturday to show cause why a week-old walkout had continued.

C. V. Wheeler, local president of the CIO United Rubber Workers, telegraphed Chairman George W. Taylor of the National War Labor Board after a mass meeting of workers.

"Workers are tired of ineffective, bungling, do-nothing policies of government agencies and resentful of show-cause orders issued in attempts to coerce them as a substitute for proper handling of the case. We will not get there, (to Washington) We have been working night and day in an attempt to settle the controversy."

"We agree that national interest demands that production of critical material at Goodyear be resumed. We disagree the way to effect the same is by issuance of orders to the union to return to work because that would not settle present and probable future controversies, and would leave the (Continued on Page 8, Col. 8)

REVEALS NAZI PLOT

SENATOR Harley M. Kilgore (D., West Va., has just revealed that German industrialists have prepared detailed plans to rearm Germany and finance Nazi Party underground activities. He bases his charges on hitherto secret documents and aimed his accusations at leaders in German industrial cartels. He announced that further discussion on the subject will be taken up at hearings before the Senate Military Affairs subcommittee on War Mobilization.

Jap Naval Arsenal And Factories Hit By B-29s

GUAM, Saturday, June 23. (AP)—Hundreds of American Superforts blasted a huge Japanese naval arsenal and five aircraft factories in daylight yesterday with 3,000 tons of demolition bombs, expanding the destruction already spread over more than 112 square miles of Nippon's industrial areas in previous B-29 raids.

Tokyo broadcast a Japanese communique claim that twenty-six of the 450 Superforts that pounded Honshu island targets were shot down.

In Washington the Twentieth Air Force headquarters announced that four planes were missing, Japanese Air opposition was ineffective over all the targets, the communique said, but added that flak varied from moderate to intense.

The Naval arsenal at Kure, last big plant of its type not previously hit in B-29 visits to Japan, was struck in visual bombing from medium altitude.

Aircraft factory targets were the Mitsubishi and Kawasaki plants at Kawanagahara, twenty miles north of Nagoya; the Kawasaki establishment at Himeji and the Kawasaki factory at Akashi, both near Kobe, and the Mitsubishi-Mishima plant at Tamashima, ninety miles west of Kobe.

Twenty-first bomber command headquarters said B-29 fire raids on seven small Japanese industrial communities Monday and Tuesday, and on Osaka June 15 damaged more than nine square miles of factory areas, bringing to at least 112 square miles the total destroyed or damaged in the Superforts' sweeps that began last November.

Chinese Capture of Linchow Air Base Seems To Be A Possibility

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press News Analyst
Chinese capture of the former American advance air base of Linchow, which both Chungking and American sources in China indicate is impending, would mark the definite end of the Japanese China-Rail China land communication corridor.

The main stem of that corridor, both rail and road, runs through Linchow. If the enemy is preparing to evacuate the town, falling back northward on Kweilin as reported, there would be cause to anticipate the collapse of the whole west side of the Japanese corridor defense front south of Linchow to the West River.

That would leave Japanese troops to the south all the way to Singapore and Sumatra virtually abandoned. Their only other land connection with Japanese armies in Central and North China is a precarious route along the lower reaches of the West River to link up with the still unbroken Hankow-Canton arm of the (Continued on Page 8, Col. 8)

Rousing Welcome Given Eisenhower By His Home Town

General Describes It as the Greatest Moment in His Whole Life

ABILENE, Kas., June 22. (AP)—General Dwight D. Eisenhower tonight brought "the very greatest moment in my whole life"—his homecoming—to an official close in a press conference in which he denied with the utmost vigor that he had any idea of going into politics, and stated that when he takes off his uniform it will be to return to civilian life.

"Look," he said in response to a question about whether he might become secretary of state, "I'm in the federal service and I take the orders of my commander in chief. All I want is to be a citizen of the United States, and when the War department turns me out to pasture that's all I want to be."

"I want nothing else."

Not interested in politics. "It is silly to talk about me in politics, and so far once I'll talk about that, but only to settle this thing once and for all. I should like to make this as emphatic as possible. There's no use my denying that I'll fly to the moon, because no one has suggested it and I couldn't if I wanted to. The same goes for politics."

Eisenhower said he would spend the weekend here with his family, then return to Washington Monday for a conference with Secretary of War Stimson.

"Right after that I'm going for a short rest, and I'm not going to tell anyone when I'm going. I'm just going to rest. Believe me, I've been through a lot."

Reminded that President Truman yesterday said he could have anything he wanted, Eisenhower was asked what he wanted.

"Nothing," he replied briskly. Eisenhower told the large press conference that early in July he expected to be back in Europe, to resume his two-way job, administering control of American forces there, and sitting on the Control Commission that will be the government of Germany.

Asked if he would go to the Pacific he said: "I'm going back to Europe, and that's one long way from the Pacific."

Eisenhower, limping from a wounded knee he suffered in a fall, received a tumultuous hero's welcome before he could reach his hotel, out of his old home town today but with characteristic modesty told his proud and cheering neighbors "I'm not a hero."

Chinese Troops Pound Liuchow

By SPENCER MOOSA
CHUNGKING, June 22. (AP)—Chinese troops, attacking in five columns, pounded tonight upon the rail city of Liuchow and its airfield, and the Chinese high command said one force had broken through the city's defenses.

Unconfirmed reports reaching Maj. Gen. Robert B. McClure's headquarters at Kunming said the city was burning, that the airfield was wrecked and that Liuchow was so closely invested its fall might be only a matter of hours. It lies 400 miles southeast of Chungking.

Chinese headquarters said Chinese troops had attacked the airbase on the city's southern outskirts—abandoned by the United States Fourteenth Air Force last November—inflicting heavy casualties on the defenders.

Besides the column that penetrated into the south railroad station, the Chinese said, another seized a point on the Kweilow-Kwangsi railroad six miles to the south and southwest, and a fifth reached the outskirts of Liuchow, about ten miles north-northwest of the rail junction, where "fierce fighting" developed.

A Chinese spokesman said the bulk of the Japanese defenders had been withdrawn northward toward Kweilin—where another American airbase was abandoned last fall—leaving only 1,000 to 2,000 Japanese to defend Liuchow, a prime junction city of South China.

While other actions flared over Southern and Eastern China, a Chinese high command officer declared a general Chinese offensive was in the making, but that it might still be "a little time" before such a blow was mounted.

House Votes To Strip OPA of Its Jurisdiction over Food Prices

Would Place That Responsibility in the Agriculture Department

By FRANCIS M. LEMAY
WASHINGTON, June 22. (AP)—In a bitter uprising against meat, sugar and other shortages, the House voted 145 to 142 today to strip the OPA of jurisdiction over food pricing and place this responsibility in the Agriculture department.

With many democrats absent, Republicans pressed through a broadened version of a recommendation by Herbert Hoover for "an administrative revolution" to solve that meat "famine."

The action, taken by teller vote, is subject to a later roll call vote. Democrats, seeing themselves outnumbered at least temporarily in the virtually straight party line voting, put off the final showdown until tomorrow.

Numerous amendments beaten. The administration defeat came after Democratic party lines previously had held firm to beat back numerous amendments designed to curb OPA powers.

One Republican amendment, defeated 177 to 126, would have ended OPA's new lease on life to six months instead of a year as sought by the administration.

Under the food amendment, offered by Rep. Jenkins (R-Ohio), chairman of the House Republican Food Study Committee, the OPA would retain control over details of food rationing but lose all other authority over the nation's larders.

The Republican victory came after Democratic leader McCormack, of Massachusetts, declared that "this is the Hoover amendment" and pleaded for its defeat.

Rep. Clinton P. Anderson (D-NM), who becomes agriculture secretary June 1, voted against the transfer of authority from OPA to his own hands. He told the House he would "not run from any responsibility but I don't want to be a policeman."

Hoover, former president and World War I food administrator, wrote Jenkins a letter which was read to the House, declaring that the existence of black markets in meats and fats in every city of the country is sufficient evidence of a breakdown in control of both distribution and price.

Roll Call Delayed. He proposed "an administrative revolution," transferring all meat authority except the details of rationing from the OPA to the Agriculture department. Jenkins' amendment would give relief from the present acute shortages in supplies in Maryland would be most helpful.

The extreme shortages in both meat and poultry, he said, had added greatly to the work load on price and rationing controls and "further increased our responsibility to continue vigorous activity to safeguard the public against any spread of black market operations in scarce items."

Meanwhile, the governor stated before leaving to attend the New York conference that "the poultry situation in Maryland and the Delaware peninsula needs prompt and far-reaching relief if this area is to maintain its position as the largest poultry producing area in the United States."

Regarding the meat situation in the states as a whole, the governor said that "a comparison of figures shows that, taking the available legitimate meat supply of the country as whole as 100 per cent, Marylanders are getting thirty to ninety per cent of their share."

Collective Trials Of War Criminals Proposed by U. S.

Would Clear Up Whole Thing at Once, Justice Robert Jackson Says

By ALEX SINGLETON
LONDON, June 22. (AP)—Germany's arch war criminals and their terror-troop organizations may be prosecuted "before the end of summer" in an unprecedented collective trial on a blanket charge of provoking and waging an illegal war, Supreme Court Justice Robert Jackson announced today.

The chief prosecutor of war crimes for the United States declared the American plan which he unfolded for fastening guilt upon the Nazis in a single trial before a four-power military tribunal would "clear up the whole thing at once."

The sage, sharp-eyed former attorney general emphasized that he could speak only for the United States. But he said in response to a press conference question that none of the other three major Western powers had yet expressed opposition to the plan.

Jackson's disclosures came as the four powers—the United States, Russia, France and Britain—arranged for a conference in London early next week in an effort to reach a formal agreement on the procedure, place and time of the trials.

Jackson said the United States was advocating trial by a military tribunal on which each of the four major powers would be represented by "one or two judges," who would decide the degree of punishment to be meted out to those convicted.

Under the broad American plan, a number of ranking Nazis, men such as Reichsmarshal Hermann Goering and Foreign Minister Joachim Ribbentrop—and other officials such as the Gestapo and the SS, presumably would be brought to trial collectively.

Questioned whether there was any danger of delays resulting from appeals, Jackson replied that "the only appeal they will have will be to history."

Although he declined to identify publicly at this time those who will be tried, the American prosecutor said that the Nazis had been in high military or official places if there is evidence to prove that he is a war criminal.

To a direct question whether Goering and Von Ribbentrop would be on the list of defendants, Jackson replied: "I would not want to bind my associates, but if I were a newspaperman, I should not hesitate to assume that they would not be omitted."

Of Rudolf Hess, who fled to England, Jackson commented that "the same answer would go for him."

The War department said Gen. Reckord was expected to fly direct from Germany with a group of sixty-four officers and men who are scheduled to be welcomed home with a huge reception upon arrival in the Pennsylvania city.

Following the reception, the Maryland general is expected to visit his home in Baltimore.

A soldier for more than forty of his sixty-five years, Gen. Reckord went overseas in November, 1943, and his assignment as the provost marshal general of the United States Army in the European theater was announced on his arrival in England in December.

The assignment made Gen. Reckord the ranking military Marylander in the European theater. He is a native of Harford county.

He previously had been commanding officer of the Third Service Command with headquarters in Baltimore.

In March, 1944, Gen. Reckord was awarded the Distinguished Service Medal with an Oak Leaf cluster for his service as head of the Third Service Command, and in March of this year the Maryland Legislature commended him for "his outstanding military life."

Scheduled to come home in the same party with Gen. Reckord are Gen. Joseph T. McNamara, commander of the Mediterranean theater; Gen. Jacob L. Devers, commander of the Sixth army group and temporary commander of the Twelfth army group, and Lt. Gen. William H. Simpson, head of the Ninth army.

Sugar Rations Will Continue at Present Levels

HAVANA, Cuba, June 22. (AP)—Sugar rations in the United States will continue at present levels for at least another year, Earl Wilson, director of the Commodity Credit Corporation's (CCC) sugar section, said today.

Wilson made the disclosure in a press conference after a two weeks inspection of drought-devastated Cuban sugar cane fields.

Agreement Is Reached on New Polish Regime

LONDON, Saturday, June 23. (AP)—The Moscow radio announced today a complete agreement had been reached among the Polish groups meeting in Moscow on the formation of a Polish government.

The broadcast, quoting a Tass News Agency report, said representatives of the Soviet-sponsored Warsaw government and other Polish groups had "reached a full understanding as regards the reorganization of the provisional government" to establish a national unity government.

Polish leaders taking part in the discussion included Boleslaw Bierut, president of the Warsaw government, and Stanislaw Mikolajczyk, former Polish party leader and former head of the London Polish government in exile.

The broadcast said Wincenty Witos, peasant party leader, and Stanislaw Grabski, formerly an exile government leader, had been invited to join the Presidium of the Polish National Council.

The report added the Mikolajczyk, Jan Stanczyk, one-time minister of labor in the Polish Government in exile; M. Thugut and Laszlas Kierm, former Polish ministers of interior, would be included in the government.

The full composition of the government will be announced in (Continued on Page 8, Col. 7)

Gen. Roy Geiger Named Chief Field Commander Of Pacific Marines

WASHINGTON, June 22. (AP)—Lt. Gen. Roy Stanley Geiger, who has been taking islands away from the Japanese ever since Bougainville, was named today as the marine corps' chief field commander.

As commanding general of the Pacific fleet marine force he succeeds the colorful Lt. Gen. Holland M. "Howlin' Mad" Smith, the man who evolved many of the marines' theories on amphibious operations and then proved his teachings against the Pacific enemy. General Smith takes over the marine training and replacement command at San Diego, Calif.

At San Diego Gen. Smith replaces Maj. Gen. Charles F. B. Brix, who goes on the retired list.

Gen. Geiger, who was appointed to his three-star rank only three days ago, presently is over-armed commander of army and marine forces in the cleanup on Okinawa. He succeeded to that command this week when a Japanese shell killed the army's Lt. Gen. Simon Bolivar Buckner, his senior in the operation.

13 Governors Assert Key to Food Shortage Is Railroad Bottleneck

NEW YORK, June 22. (AP)—Governors of thirteen Northeastern states said today the key food shortages in their areas was elimination of what they called a railroad bottleneck preventing shipment of sufficient feed grain.

In a nine-page joint statement issued after an all-day food conference, the governors said: "Grain for the northeast means milk and eggs. Milk and eggs mean the best possible protection for the greatest northeastern people."

The governors said "the greatest service that could be rendered to meet the acute grain shortage on which our essential food supply depends would be for the Office of Defense Transportation to make immediately available an increased number of box cars."

The main railroad bottleneck was the Buffalo, N. Y., where, they said, the box car shortage yesterday was 3,678 cars. As a result of this shortage, only 151 cars were loaded with grain for domestic use, they said.

Situation Tamed Critical. "With only a few days' supply of grain in many sections, the immediate situation of our laying flocks and dairy herds is critical," the statement said.

The governors appointed a committee of three "to press for action by the appropriate federal authorities consistent with the facts as we have stated them."

The committee included Gov. Herbert R. O'Connell of Maryland, Gov. Raymond E. Baldwin, of Connecticut, and Gov. J. Howard McGrath, of Rhode Island.

Other conclusions reached by the governors:

1. "Grain supply for the northeast is not improving but is steadily deteriorating. The grain essential to the northeast is not moving in sufficient quantities to us over the Great Lakes from Canada and the Midwest is not moving in sufficient (Continued on Page 8, Col. 6)

Enemy Air Force Sinks Two Light American Ships, Nimitz Reports

More Mass Surrenders of Nips Bring Total to 4,000; Civilians Stream to U. S. Lines

By LEIF ERICKSSON
GUAM, Saturday, June 22. (AP)—Slaughter of Japanese die-hards on Okinawa, where more than 90,000 have been killed, and more mass surrenders, swelling the bag well beyond 4,000, continued Friday as the American flag waved in victory over that potential staging base for the next invasion.

Nippon still lashed back from an invasion-jittery homeland with the air arm, however, sinking two light American vessels, heavily damaging an auxiliary unit and slightly damaging two other light units, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz acknowledged in today's communique.

Tenth army patrols, working over three weakly resistant pockets, killed 596 Nipponese in all sectors Thursday night and early Friday. One hundred sixty of the foe committed group suicide with hand grenades at the southern tip of the island.

Ceremonial raising of the flag yesterday formally proclaimed United States possession of 485 square miles of soil characterized as enemy "homeland" by the Tenth army leaders.

E. S. Shipping Raided. The enemy air force, which already had sunk thirty-one ships and damaged more than fifty during the Okinawa campaign, hit the shipping during a series of raids Thursday night.

Enemy planes tried it again Friday morning but were chased off by American interceptors. The group suicide occurred on the extreme southwestern tip of Okinawa, where the Tenth army division has a pocket of the enemy surrounded.

Another pocket still held out to the east, along the coast south of Mabuni, against Maj. Gen. Archibald V. Arnold's Seventh Infantry division.

Yet another pocket was fighting back with dwindling strength inland in a triangular area, circumscribed by the towns of Arasachi, Medeira and Makabe. It was being reduced by the Three Hundred and Fifth Infantry regiment.

Treasure Cache Of $75,000,000 Found by Yanks

ROSENHEIM, Germany, June 22. (AP)—A cache of Royal Hungarian treasures valued at $75,000,000 by American military officers has been discovered at Matsee, thirteen miles northwest of Budapest. Included in the find, the officers said, was the "Holy Hand of St. Stephen," king of Hungary from 997 to 1038 A. D.

Infantry of the United States Forty-second Division (Rainbow) found the diamond, ruby and pearl studded hand in the home of a seventy-year-old Catholic priest. This religious relic had rested for 855 years in the Royal Hungarian chapel in Budapest.

The hand has been described by churchmen as the actual hand of St. Stephen. He was the first apostle of Hungary, having been recognized and crowned king by his Holiness, Pope Sylvester II in 1001 A. D.

During its operations an infantry patrol from the Forty-second division took a score of Fascist collaborators into custody. Included in this haul, officers said, was Madame Ferenc Szallasi, wife of the puppet premier of Hungary, and Capt. Ernest von Bombossem, a top-flight Hungarian Nazi leader.

Point System for Releasing Men From Army Is Fair, Survey Shows

By DR. GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., June 22—The public approves both the machinery by which men are taken into the Army and the system by which they eventually get out.

Two polls were conducted simultaneously on the separate problems of Army discharge and the draft. They find an overwhelming majority among the adult population approving the point system by which soldiers are released from the Army and an even greater majority—virtually eight out of ten—saying they think the draft is being handled fairly in their own communities.

The point system in use by the Army for release of soldiers offers an excellent example of a specific use of the science of public opinion sampling.

This point system was set up following a careful survey of soldiers in all parts of the world. The survey conducted by a branch of the Army, asked the soldiers what they lease of soldiers when some could be let out. The point system is based on the outcome of that survey.

In order to find out how people here at home feel about the system, more than 250 field reporters for the Institute put this question to a cross-section of the adult population in all parts of the country.

"Do you think the point system for releasing men from the Army is fair?"

The replies:

YES ..... 72%
NO ..... 15%
NO OPINION ..... 13%

The same high majority approving the system prevails when the vote is limited to those who have a relative in the armed service. Likewise there is little difference of opinion among men and women.

Everyone, including those who said they thought the point system fair, were asked what changes they would like to see made in the system as it now operates. Only 30 per cent suggested changes. These, in order of frequency, are as follows:

Credit for children should be higher. Men who have served the thought should be the bases for re-longest should be released first. Men in combat longest should be released first. Years of overseas service should be given more points. Age should be given more consideration. Point requirements should be lowered generally. The point system should be extended to include the Marines, the Navy, the Medical Corps. Men who have enough points should not be kept in, no matter how essential they are considered to be. More points should be given for wounds. Officers should be included in the system. Dependents other than children should be counted. Married men should be released first; men should be given points for wives.

The question measuring sentiment toward the job done by local draft boards is the same one used at periodic intervals since the draft began in 1940:

"Do you think the draft is being handled fairly in your community?"

The results offer a gratifying picture to the thousands of men who have served on these draft boards during the war, for in spite of the fact that millions of men have passed before these boards, the public is overwhelmingly of the feeling that the boards have been fair.

Here is a table showing sentiment on the issue today and in previous surveys:

	Yes	No
May, 1941	93%	7%
May, 1942	88	12
Nov., 1942	82	18
Jan. 1, 1945	75	25
TODAY	72	28

New Labor Plan Follows A Successful Pattern

EXPERIENCE with the continual sporadic labor stoppages that have occurred all over the country during the period when the war effort has demanded the utmost production, as well as prior experience, has proved the need for a sensible and fair revision of the national labor laws. A hopeful approach to such a revision is provided in the plan put before Congress by Senators Hatch, Burton and Ball, designated the Federal Industrial Relations act.

Such a movement should be devoid of partisanship and this is assured by the sponsorship. Senator Hatch is a Democrat, Senators Burton and Ball are Republicans. All are members of the "B2H2" group which in 1943 led the way for a Senate resolution favoring an international peace organization. They believe domestic peace is indispensable to world peace.

The drafting of the new bill was largely in the hands of thirteen prominent citizens, many of them experienced in labor relations, but not representing any labor or management organization. Their chairman, Donald Richberg, was co-author of the successful Railway Labor act. A disinterested viewpoint was thus assured.

The proposed legislation is patterned after the Railway Labor act. It would not forbid strikes; it would require reasonable effort to settle controversies through negotiation, mediation, voluntary arbitration and impartial public statements of fact—before a strike could be called legally. If it would hold the states responsible for dealing with minor and local disputes, it would compel arbitration only in "grievance" disputes arising under contracts reached by collective bargaining or where a strike—as among public-utility workers—would cause severe public hardship.

It would deny the closed shop to unions failing to meet specified tests of their democracy; those, for example, whose membership is not open to all qualified applicants. And it would correct a gross unfairness in the Wagner Act by forbidding employers as well as employers to engage in unfair labor practices.

This newspaper has repeatedly expressed its admiration of the Railway Labor act, believing it to be the best instrumentality yet devised for successful settlement of labor-management troubles without resort to the strike weapon or to lockouts, violence and economic waste. If such an instrument could be provided for all labor-management fields we should go far on the road toward industrial peace.

The need for an improved labor-management situation is glaringly impressed, as it has been impressed so many times over the war months, by the press dispatches showing the increased number of workers idle in strikes. At the time these lines were typed the total had gone over the 60,000 mark as the main plant of the Packard Motor Car Company at Detroit was forced to shut down, and a further increase in the number away from work was expected to result from a strike in the glass industry strike in which 8,000 Pennsylvania workers have been involved for days.

Clearly something is wrong and something should be done by way of correction.

A Grave Home-Front Medical Situation

THOSE who have expressed concern over the long hours and laborious work experienced by physicians practicing on the home front and the number is large—can appreciate as well as these medical men themselves the warning issued by Dr. Morris Fishbein, head of the American Medical Association, as to the future of medical care. Asserting that there is an "inadequate supply" of medical students, Dr. Fishbein declares it represents a "danger to the public health" and may by next year result in a serious diminution of the medical profession, already ill-manned by reason of war exactions.

Dr. Fishbein declares that our government has "not been sufficiently intelligent" to recognize this health danger. Well, what should be done about it? He offers alternate solutions: Congress should take prompt action on the bills submitted by Senator Ellender, of Louisiana, or Selective Service should utilize powers already granted to defer men pursuing pre-medical courses of study.

The warning is all the more impressive in view of the added demands to be expected from the armed services, as noted by Dr. Fishbein. The government now requires a far greater number of physicians than ever before, he says, most conservative estimates indicating 5,000 for the army, 2,000 for the navy, 10,000 for the Veterans Administration, 3,000 for the Public Health Service and 3,000 for services in occupied areas abroad, making a total of 23,000 physicians unavailable for the present care of the civilian population.

Considering the work falling upon the shoulders of physicians now at home and the public health outlook, this warning with its recommendations may well be heeded.

Action Is Promised In Food Situation

THAT is gratifying news coming from Olympia, Wash., that President Truman promises an improvement in the national meat situation and that, to help bring it about, there will be a single control over prices and food.

Equally encouraging is the report from Chicago reporting Rep. Clifton Anderson, of New Mexico, who will become secretary of agriculture in a few days, as asking help of the meat industry in the task.

"I will need help in my new job," Rep. Anderson said, speaking informally at a luncheon of the National Livestock and Meat Board. "About all I can bring to do it is the earnest desire to see that the American farmer does not sacrifice himself vainly in his efforts to produce enormous amounts of food. I do not want a recurrence of what happened to the farmer after the last war. I want the livestock industry to tell me when and how subsidies should be removed. They should not hang over as a threat to postwar livestock production."

The purpose and determination of the new secretary, as thus expressed, are commendable. The aid he asks for will be forthcoming and it is to be hoped that a way out of the existing deplorable situation can speedily be found.

President Truman amplified his promise of improvement, which was given at his first press conference held outside the White House, by saying that the administration is at work on a plan for single control over prices and food, but did not disclose how it would function, probably for the reason that the plans are as yet incomplete. But he said that the meat shortage would automatically be straightened out as soon as Anderson takes office as his new secretary of agriculture and war food administrator, which will be on July 1.

The president spoke reassuringly of the food situation and this is encouragement for the millions of Americans who are experiencing such difficulties in obtaining enough to eat. His expressed earnest desire and his broadmindedness in accepting suggestions are likewise encouraging as indicated by his acknowledgment that former President Hoover had been very helpful in his recent White House talk on the subject.

A Report Impressing The Need for Economy

STRANGE AS IT MAY SOUND to Americans who have been anxiously aware of the mushrooming national debt, a Brookings Institution report made public a few days ago asserts that this country has more fiscal problems to solve in the postwar period. Moreover, it cites facts that fully support this conclusion.

The report, which deals with the cost of government at all levels during the years that will follow the end of the fighting, does not minimize the size of the problem presented by the obligations assumed by the federal government. It estimates that the public debt will rise to $310,000,000,000 and that it will cost $5,000,000,000 a year to service this huge sum. But it holds that the primary problem is "large and growing expenditures" for all functions of government.

It is necessary to agree, since it is reasonable to anticipate that the federal budget after the war will not fall much below the $22,000,000,000 a year estimated for 1949. Quite obviously, the government will still be spending large sums for national defense. Veteran payments will be high. Then there will be other heavy expenses under the head of aid to agriculture, highway grants, public assistance and so on.

In comparing the estimates for 1949 to actual expenditures in 1940, the report predicts increased outlay in all major classifications but one—social welfare. Assuming a high level of production and employment, it expects the cost of relief to be lower. But that is only one item out of many.

So the situation in the postwar budget will be fixed. Others will be hard to keep within bounds. But it is plain that every possible economy will be necessary if the burden is to be prevented from becoming dangerously topheavy.

Hundreds of air raid sirens are offered for sale in New York city. They would make dandy lease breakers, if anyone was crazy enough these days, to want to break his lease.

Japan asserts they received valuable war secrets from Germany. If Japan follows the German pattern in fighting the war from now on, America will have no complaint.

COLOR

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

There is much of the poet in most of us, if not all of us, for it is from color that the poet thrives. Just imagine what a dark and dismal world this would be with no color in it! God knew that he could not inhabit world with thinking, feeling human beings if he did not put color into it.

And so the Creator did put color everywhere. First the green grass, then the trees, the flowers, the hills and streams, the stones, and the animals. Into the simplest and rarest of the waste places and of the deserts he put these exquisite colors that we all love. I never lack for flowers at my small island home in Nova Scotia. My faithful helper there keeps a dozen vases of them in the Lodge at all times—wild, beautiful specimens, gathered from the shore, the forest, and the stream. Beautiful as are all the domestic varieties, they look out of place in that little cabin of mine. I like the wild ones best. We gain all our cues as to color. We transfer them into our carpets and rugs, into the jacks on our books, and to the covers. We imitate them on our homes, as well, reflect these same colors against the sunlight. Wherever there is color there is beauty. Color has a wonderful effect upon health, and indeed upon our very happiness. Color warms us and stirs up feeling within us.

The painter is a poet. He is a realistic poet, romping his soul, and tracking his mind into color. Thoreau spoke of color as "the poet's wealth." But this wealth may be transferred to anyone who loves color or in any of its combinations. Little do any of us realize how color influences our thoughts and actions, or even our attitude toward life.

The Creator didn't arrange sunsets for nothing. He had a purpose in them, as he did in his arrangement of the heavens, and of all this earth. Why such perfect balance, form, and structure to every leaf, bud, flower, or tree? Why the blue sea and the rhythm of each wave? Nothing was meant to "just happen." Color was put into the world to give us a generous squirt of heaven itself!

Free Space Is Offered Tydings the Next Time He Wants To Call Pearson a Liar

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Handsome Senator Millard Tydings, of Maryland, got slightly excited on the Senate floor this week about this column's speculation as to why he left Manila after five days, when he had expected to remain five weeks.

Actually, the senator should not have been too upset over the implication that Gen. MacArthur didn't want him wandering around the Philippines investigating things. Because just as good men as Millard (some say even better) have been barred from Luzon by MacArthur. They include: Four generals, all Treasury department officials, and all officers working for Gen. William Donovan's Office of Strategic Services.

The Treasury department had to protest to the White House direct before MacArthur would permit its officials to enter the Philippines. They have finally been admitted. But the surgeon general of the army, Maj. Gen. Norman Kirk, never did get into Luzon; nor did Lieut. Gen. Edmund Gregory, the quartermaster general of the army; nor Brig. Gen. James Simmons, of the surgeon general's office; nor Brig. Gen. John F. Davis, of the supply forces. MacArthur barred them all.

When Gen. Kirk got MacArthur's message in Leyte that he was not to proceed on to Manila, the surgeon general could scarcely believe his eyes. He had important hospitals to visit in several parts of Luzon. So he sent MacArthur another telegram which said: "Don't understand your message. Do you mean by your telegram that I am not to proceed on to Manila, and so that my assistance is not welcome?"

To this, MacArthur replied: "No, repeat, no."

Secretary of War Stimson then took the unusual step of sending MacArthur an official inquiry as to why he barred the surgeon general of the army from Luzon. MacArthur sent back the rather lame explanation that he had not understood the nature of General Kirk's mission.

In view of all this, anyone discouraged from remaining in Manila should not feel too upset about it—nor lie a courtesan.

However, since Senator Tydings does seem upset over this column's suggestion that perhaps Gen. MacArthur didn't want him to stay more than five days in the Philippines, and since the senator seems to want circulation, we are happy to tell the world what he thinks of this columnist.

"They call him 'Pew Smearson,'" Tydings shouted to his colleagues, interrupting debate on the Trade Agreements act. "This scoundrel! In the last war the only powder he ever smelled was in the presence of ladies on the windward side of the parade ground. I would call him a perpetual, chronic, revolving liar, and a few other things that I cannot add in the presence of this distinguished company. . . . This man has engaged in the gentle art of blackmail. He has been guilty of attempting to buy public influence. He has been affiliated with one of the great gambling rackets of America. He kept a safe-deposit box containing thousands of dollars until the recent Treasury drive against income tax evaders. . . . He is a worm masquerading in the physique of a man. I should describe him as lower than the lowest form of animal life in the world."

And so on—for nearly two pages in the Congressional Record, all printed at the taxpayers' expense. Note—Next time Senator Tydings wants to hurl the "lie courtesan," he can send me a copy and, if it's as lively as the above, I'll give him space without wasting the taxpayers' money.

SEES TARGETS

MAJ. GEN. CURTIS E. LEMAY, B-29 commander in the Marianas and the army's No. 1 menace to Japan, has revealed that the Superfortresses are rapidly running out of worthwhile Japanese targets. Gen. Lemay is in Washington, D. C., for conferences with the army's air staff.

Okinawa Losses By Navy Prompt Critical Study

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, June 22—Eleven destroyers and twenty other warships sunk, fifty-four warships damaged, of which four were "major units," namely battleships or large aircraft carriers—this is the announced loss which the United States Navy suffered at Okinawa as taken from the official figures.

No naval battle in the Pacific, even including Pearl Harbor, compares with it when personnel losses are counted. Only one of the nineteen warships listed as sunk or damaged at Pearl Harbor was announced as totally lost. Even the three destroyers were salvaged.

As for the losses in personnel at Pearl Harbor, there were 3,303 officers and enlisted men of the army and navy killed or missing. The wounded of both services numbered 1,272.

At Okinawa, up to May 29, the navy and coast guard lost 4,729 aboard ships and 4,640 were wounded.

Japanese Blow Severe

In no single naval battle of surface ships in the Pacific has the American navy suffered as big a loss as thirty-one warships sunk and fifty-four damaged. Thus the Japanese delivered a powerful blow by airplanes against the American naval units stationed off Okinawa.

If the warfare had been confined to a single engagement from the air in two or three days, Japan could not have inflicted such serious losses.

The losses came because the United States Navy found it necessary to provide air cover and supply ships for nearly three months while the ground forces battled it out on Okinawa. The navy stood by off shore waiting for the army air force to set up their own airplane defense of the island against a flow of suicide bombers.

On the ground, the casualties of the United States Army up to June 19 were 4,417 killed and missing, while the marines lost 2,573 in killed and missing. The wounded on Okinawa itself numbered 29,598.

No other naval operation in this whole war in connection with landings either in Sicily, Normandy or anywhere else in the Pacific resulted in such heavy losses in personnel aboard ships for the American or British navies.

But the losses in time as well as damage to ships must be included. The B-29's were called off their most important mission of bombing the heart of Japan so as to get at the air bases from which the Japanese were reinforcing their air operations against Okinawa.

Likewise the damage done to the American warships required repairs which took out of active service for an undisclosed length of time a large number of vessels, including the four major units.

Discussed by Experts

Military men here in Washington have been discussing the Okinawa operation for several weeks now. They are not armchair strategists. Some of them actually saw the operations in Okinawa. Reports have been coming back from the scene to all the armed services—army, navy and marine corps. Military critics may speculate from their arm chairs but reporters talk with persons who know what has happened and if these reports are conscientious, they tell the public about it and do not worry much as to whose feelings are hurt.

Central Purpose Clear

The central purpose is clear enough. In the language of the bill: "All Americans able to work and seeking work have the right to useful, remunerative, regular and full-time employment." The term "all Americans" is comprehensive. It means "All Americans who have finished their schooling and who do not have full-time housekeeping responsibilities." For all such, the bill announces that "It is the policy of the United States to assure the existence at all time of sufficient employment opportunities."

One feature of the bill is made conspicuous by obviously deliberate repetition. In the contention about rival economic systems that has gone on for some years, many persons have come to think of the term "full employment" as associated with either government ownership of industry or a planned economy inconsistent with free private enterprise. Of this impression, the authors of the present bill are obviously aware. They seek to remove it. Over and over, in the language of the bill, it is asserted that the full employment which this bill contemplates is to be attained under private ownership of industry; that far from attacking private ownership, the purpose of this bill is to foster private ownership.

The emphasis on private industry begins with a direct statement in the preamble: "Congress hereby declares that it is the policy of the United States to foster free competitive industry and the investment of private capital in trade and commerce."

Over and over the bill is dotted with such phrases as: "Preserve and strengthen competitive private enterprise, particularly small business." "Promote increased employment opportunities by private enterprise." "Yet again: 'Any . . . programs calling for the construction of public works . . . shall provide for the performance of the necessary construction work by private concerns.'"

Finally and explicitly: "Nothing contained herein shall be construed as calling for or authorizing the operation of plants, factories or other production facilities by the federal government."

Double Ideal

Here then is the double ideal: (1) There are to be jobs for everybody, full employment. (2) The full employment is to be provided by private industry.

But in the past there have been periods during which private industry did not provide jobs for everybody, periods of depression and unemployment. To offset such unemployment, the present bill lays a responsibility on the government.

At the beginning of each year the president, with heads of departments and an advisory board, is to estimate what unemployment, if any, is likely to exist during the ensuing year. To prevent such unemployment, the president is to recommend legislation to Congress. The recommendations, as outlined in the bill, may be in many fields—public works, foreign trade, agriculture, taxation, development of natural resources, banking and currency, monopoly and competition.

Old Process Formalized

One reads all this, and one wonders. In past depressions, presidents have recommended, and Congress has passed, legislation designed to cure unemployment. Except that this bill formalizes the process, one wonders just how much is new in it. In past depressions, the legislation to cure unemployment has included direct employment of workers by the federal government, such as WPA. But this the present bill forbids.

Perhaps we may get light on just what the bill means from the "frank and open discussion" which Senator Wagner asks for.

On the "full employment" bill, the chairman of the Senate Banking committee, Senator Wagner, of New York, announces hearings of unusual length, with testimony to be heard from an extraordinary large number of witnesses, representing a wide range of interests. Further, Mr. Wagner makes a public appeal for "frank and open discussion" by groups and individuals "in every state and in every community . . . every forum." As one of the authors of the bill, Senator Wagner obviously wishes for complete public understanding.

For this, the need is apparent to any one who reads the bill. The present writer, after many readings, is left with a somewhat mystified feeling that the bill may mean either little or much, either merely a worthy aspiration toward better things, or something which in its

It Says Here

By BOB HOPE

NEW YORK—When we slid into New York on the first leg of our European U. S. O. trip and I drove away from the station, the streets were lined for miles with cheering crowds. From the way they were yelling and shouting to get up from their seats, I thought Gen. Eisenhower was in town. Thirty-four years and eight birthdays later, I found out. Gen. Eisenhower was in town. In fact, he's taken over the town. It was "Ike's Day" in New York and everyone from Grover Whelan to Broadway Rose was out yelling themselves hoarse.

The general stood up in a cab and waved to the crowds for thirty-seven miles. When he got through his arm applied for a medical discharge claiming combat fatigue.

During the parade they didn't want any paper thrown out of the windows because of the shortage (of paper, not windows) . . . but a lot of people couldn't restrain themselves and Mayor LaGuardia dislocated his shoulder twice trying to grab the scraps and throw them back up. Of course the more thoughtful citizens just leaned out of their offices with a piece of confetti on a yo-yo.

I had a grand view of the parade. Fortunately, this trip I was able to pull a few strings and get a hotel room with a window. In the afternoon the general saw a baseball game at the Polo Grounds, and they offered to let him throw out the first grenade. And whenever there was a bad decision the general didn't boo. He just waved his hand and two squadrons of P-51s zoomed down and strafed the umpire. And all the Ball Players kept winning and smiling and waving at Eisenhower's box. Some of them are still of draft age.

The General is stopping at the Waldorf-Astoria . . . where I always get my stationery . . . This evening they threw a big banquet for him and for the first time Gen. Eisenhower realized he was really in New York. Forgetting himself he asked the waiter for some butter. The waiter raised his eyebrows and said, "Please—don't you know there's a war on!"

Service Button Design Conceived By Gen. Pershing

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX
Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage
Dear Miss Fairfax:
I'm interested in finding out who designed the service buttons which are issued to veterans upon their discharge from the service. Can you advise me?

J. F.
The lapel button given to discharged service people is similar, basically, to the metal and enamel button authorized in 1925 by the War Department for wear by men and women who had certain specified types of military service or training. The design was originally conceived by General John J. Pershing.

Purple Heart Ribbon

Dear Miss Fairfax:
A Purple Heart award was sent to my mother, as next of kin, when my brother died from injuries received in combat. The ribbon was missing. Is it possible to obtain another, and where shall she write for same?

G. L. W.
Any person who has received a medal and has not the accompanying ribbon, and the enameled replica of the ribbon for wear on the lapel of civilian clothing, may obtain them by addressing a letter of request to the Adjutant General of the Army, Washington 25, D. C.

Army Cap Insignia
Dear Miss Fairfax:
How can I find out when the cap insignia worn by army officers was first authorized? If you can give me this information I shall be very grateful.

(Mrs.) O. W.
The army cap insignia is the same as the coat of arms of the United States. It was first authorized on January 7, 1895 and became effective July 1 of the same year. A War Department circular to this effect was issued.

Clothes' Allowance of Marines
Dear Miss Fairfax:
My daughter is very anxious to join the women's reserve of the marine corps. Will she be given an allowance for her clothes and uniforms, or are these things issued to her?

MOTHER D.
The women in the marine corps receive a clothing allowance of $200 for enlisted personnel, and $250 for officers. With this they are supposed to purchase what they need.

Extra Pay for Paratroopers
Dear Miss Fairfax:
I understand that paratroopers receive extra pay for each jump they make? Is this true? And how much additional pay do they get?

G. D. G.
Officers and warrant officers of the armed forces will receive additional pay for each jump.

Officers and warrant officers of the armed forces will receive additional pay for each jump.

LISTEN WORLD!

—By Elsie Robinson
(Registered U. S. Patent Office)

One of the toughest lessons we must face in this life is the discovery that we must always walk alone. No matter how popular we are, no matter how deeply beloved, no matter how deserving of understanding and sympathy we must live in solitude.

Even as tiny children this realization begins unconsciously. We have scores of playmates and a succession of chums, but one after another they disappoint and estrange us. They refuse to do the things we want to do. So we discard Jenny or Jimmy and cast in our lot with Rose or Bob. But the result is always the same—we never quite fit each other. Yet we go on hoping that somewhere, some day, we'll find the perfect friend. BUT WE NEVER DO.

I'm thinking of that wonderful paragraph in Somerset Maugham's "The Moon and Sixpence": "Each one of us is alone in the world. He is shut in a tower of brass, and can communicate with his fellows only by signs, and the signs have no common value so that their sense is vague and uncertain. We seek pitifully to convey to others the treasures of our hearts, but they have not the power to accept them, and so we go lonely, side by side but not together, unable to know our fellows and unknown to them."

What a tremendous difference it would make in our lives if we could accept this truth! So much of our misery is caused because we are seeking a sentimental relationship which can never be and which should never be. We are impossible and when it does not occur we blame the fault on

We feel that he has failed us, violated some fundamental duty. But we're wrong. Our main job in life is not to understand or be understood. Our main job is to grow... to follow our own patterns, meet our own challenges, endure our own loneliness. This does not mean that we should stifle our affection or our service to those with whom we live. To the contrary, it means that we should live as graciously, joyfully and generously as lies within our power, for that is the very means by which we do grow. But we must learn from the very first to accept loneliness as our inevitable heritage and not to condemn others because they cannot free us from its burden.

A child may cling to its mother's apron while it still toddles. But you despise a mature man who still tries to cling to someone else's strength for all his comfort and inspiration. Yet most of us do exactly that and we inevitably fail. Then we grow bitter and feel that we have been betrayed. We have not been betrayed. It is as much our duty to live on our own resources as it is to wash our own ears, and every time the other fellow because we can't do it—we are two-timing our own character.

Lonely? Then face it and accept it. It's as necessary and inevitable for your growth as food, water and air. And you'll never be born into full maturity until you learn that fact.

STATE OPA OFFICE WILL PROBE COLD STORAGE HOUSES

BALTIMORE, June 22 (AP)—The State Office of Price Administration reported today that it had begun investigation of twenty-five cold storage houses in Maryland, including one at Ellicott City, where it was said more than 500 lockers were "jammed full of meat."

Alan Murrell, state enforcement attorney for the OPA, said that thousands of pounds of meat were in storage in Maryland meat lockers, and that the OPA wanted to discover how the holders obtained the meat, how they got enough ration points, and who slaughtered the meat.

The OPA said the one cold storage plant already investigated disclosed approximately 50,000 pounds of meat in bulk storage.

The locker holders, some of whom are not Marylanders, will be subpoenaed by the OPA to answer questions on how they got the meat, Murrell said.

The OPA investigation, he said, was preceded by numerous complaints from individuals who encountered long waiting lists and day at 2:25 a. m. by Lt. James E. Van and Officer Edward C. Woods.

Recreation Plan

of a year around recreation program for children as well as adults is to benefit ten times as many people as are benefiting under the present playground system.

Eves referred to the ordinance that was proposed and died for want of a motion, saying it was a copy of one in use in another city.

Later on, Helfrich told Eves, "Roy, I don't think that ordinance was copied from any other ordinance."

"What does that make me?" Eves asked. Then he read a memorandum showing that the ordinance was a copy of one in use in Easton.

Eves suggested that the ordinance would establish a recreation program under the direction of a commission of five citizens interested in civic affairs, with one term to expire each year. He recommended the employment of a trained director although the commission would serve without compensation.

Mayor Post spoke in favor of the recreation program, pointing out that he has received a number of favorable letters from many organizations indicating that such a program would be very popular and would be accepted by the people.

He said he will "use every effort I can to further the plan."

Helfrich considered cost.

"Have you ever gone into the cost?" Helfrich asked Eves. He referred to a "lot of beautiful thoughts" and said he is "agreeable to having the best recreational program we can but there is always the obstacle of cost."

He added that he is not objecting to playgrounds but said, "There's no use in talking in too much elaboration." Helfrich asserted in reply to Eves' suggestion that misunderstanding may have caused defeat of the proposed ordinance that "I was defeated, not because we didn't understand it."

Eves then suggested that the mayor and council and city attorney prepare an ordinance, removing objectionable portions of it.

Mayor Post pointed out that some cities have set up recreation departments and said that it is beginning to be realized that children, young people and old people need recreation.

It begins with the cradle and ends with the grave," he stated, adding that when local soldiers return home they will wonder why Cumberland does not have a recreation program.

Helfrich said he understands a recreation director would receive a salary of $4,500 and asked, "Who wants it?"

W. Donald Smith, another member of the committee, explained that a list of trained personnel was submitted by the National Recreation Association and that the city could make a selection.

Helfrich said he "thought somebody had a friend who wanted a job."

Speaking for the first time, Dr. Arthur H. Hawkins, another member of the committee, stated, "We don't know whether we want this thing or not. Do we want it?" he asked.

It was that Helfrich suggested submitting the question to a vote at the next election, proposed by Dr. Hawkins replied, "Decide if you want it."

Dr. Hawkins pointed out that if the city wants the program "you can get the money."

He declared that the council does not have the "spirit to put the thing through. If the people want it, go to work for it. That's what you're here for. If you're going to do it, do it. Don't worry over a few dollars."

James Orr, commissioner of police and fire, stated that the reason "I have kept quiet is because it is entirely out of my department. If the park board recommends something, I'll support it." He said he is "not opposed to a recreation program" and thinks it is a "splendid thing."

Referring to the ordinance, Orr said it did not seem fair to pay a man $4,000 or $4,500 as recreation director when the city attorney, Cumberland's highest paid official, receives only $3,600, but members of the committee were quick to point out that the ordinance did not provide for payment of a director.

After Helfrich emphatically asserted that he was opposed "thumbs down both thumbs," to any ordinance that will tie the hands of the council, he asked what is wrong with the present playground program. Mrs. Fred T. Small, a member of the citizens' group, told him, "You're being one man against the town."

Helfrich replied, "I'm glad to know there's one man in town that's big enough."

Mrs. Small promptly responded, "Do you think you are?" to which Helfrich answered, "No."

Argument Interrupted

As a general argument appeared to be breaking out, Eves hurriedly interrupted to summarize his appeal after which Mayor Post said he will have the city attorney draw up another ordinance and submit it to the council.

Commissioner William E. McDonald was unable to attend the meeting because of being out-of-town, but Mrs. Robert A. Compton, who also is on the citizens' committee, said she spoke to him and that his opposition to the recreation program is that he is not willing to give up the parks.

Last Jap Escape Port on Luzon Taken by Yanks

By SPENCER DAVIS

MANILA, Saturday, June 23 (AP)—Aparri, last Japanese escape port on Luzon, was captured Thursday morning by United States Sixth Army Infantry and Artillery units operating with a daring band of guerrillas. Gen. Douglas MacArthur disclosed today.

Capture of the North Luzon port at the mouth of the Cagayan valley trapped an estimated 20,000 Japanese fighting troops in the valley, which already had been bisected by guerrilla capture of the Cagayan province capital of Tuguegarao, sixty-five miles by road south of Aparri.

The Sixth army units and the guerrillas, who crossed the Cagayan river from the west Wednesday night, had secured Aparri by 7:30 a. m., Thursday. Beating off scanty resistance, they then pushed rapidly southward eight miles up the road to Dugo.

Jap Counterattack Halted

The Japanese were fleeing south and east from the Aparri area but threw in a desperate small counter-attack against the guerrillas at Tuguegarao. Led by an American, Col. Russell W. Volckmann, the guerrillas beat off the tank-led charge on Thursday.

Thirty miles south of Tuguegarao troops of the United States Thirty-seventh Infantry Division advanced five miles north down the river road from Ilagan and captured the town of San Juan, an enemy position that was fairly strongly defended.

Elsewhere on Luzon, the United States Twenty-fifth Infantry division, led by Maj. Gen. Charles L. Mullins, captured the town of Pingkian, a northern road junction in the mountains, where the Japanese had been broken up into relatively isolated small groups. Previously the Cagayan valley had been suspected to harbor the largest single reservoir of Japanese on Luzon.

Lt. Bean, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Bean, Barton, has been in the service forty-four months, during eighteen of which he has served overseas.

Slimson Sends Purple Heart To Mrs. Garrett

By MRS. R. E. FISHER

MOOREFIELD, W. Va., June 22—Mrs. Maude E. Garrett, Baker, received a letter from the secretary of war, Henry L. Stimson, accompanied by a Purple Heart medal which was posthumously awarded to her son, Pfc. Max E. Garrett. The letter stated:

"The President has requested me to inform you that the Purple Heart has been awarded posthumously to your son, Private First Class Max E. Garrett, Infantry, who sacrificed his life in defense of his country."

"The medal which you will receive shortly, is of slight intrinsic value, but rich with the tradition for which Americans are so gallantly giving their lives. The Father of our country, whose profile and coat of arms adorn the medal, speaks from it across the centuries to the men who fight today for the proud freedom he founded."

"Nothing the War Department can do or say, will in any sense repair the loss of your loved one. He has gone, however, in honor and the goodly company of patriots. Let me in communicating to you the country's deep sympathy, also express to you its gratitude for his valor and devotion."

Officers Installed
P. W. Clarke was installed as worshipful master of the A. F. and A. M. No. 28 at a meeting held last Friday night.

Kemp is applying for a slaughtering permit for his own store but until he has received favorable action on this matter he has closed the meat department. His store is not closed, nor has the O. P. A. placed any restrictions on him. This action is purely voluntary on his part.

Recreation Plan To Be Presented To Council Again

Citizens Committee Holds Informal Discussion with City Officials

By A. TRAGO BRUST, JR.

Mayor Thomas S. Post yesterday afternoon promised representatives of the Citizens Recreation committee that he will have City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett prepare another ordinance providing for the appointment of a recreation commission as the first step in developing a year-around recreation program for Cumberland.

Members of the committee met with Mayor Post and three members of the council in a somewhat hectic session at which Commissioner Hunter B. Helfrich emphatically protested passage of an ordinance and suggested that the proposed recreation program be submitted to Cumberland voters at the next city election in March 1946.

Helfrich, who declared that he will not again seek election to the city council, tossed verbal barbs at members of the visiting committee and had them thrown right back at him in the "informal" discussion. Sometime ago Mayor Post proposed an ordinance, taken from one in effect in another city, providing for the naming of a commission, but council members at that time declined to take any action and the suggestion died for want of a motion.

Widened Scope
At yesterday's meeting in the mayor's office, Roy W. Eves, acting as spokesman for the citizens' group and reviewed the aims of the committee, pointing out that the object (Continued on Page 8, Col. 5)

Twice Wounded Marine Arrives Home for Convalescent Leave

Cpl. Prentis Parsons, who was wounded twice while fighting the Japs on Saipan and Iwo Jima, is spending a convalescent leave with his wife, Mrs. Wilda Steckman Parsons, 309 Reynolds street.

The local marine participated in the invasion of Iwo Jima and was wounded in the back July 6, 1944, while fighting on Saipan. Sixty-two days later, Cpl. Parsons returned to his outfit, the Fourth division, and participated in the invasion of Iwo Jima.

Thirteen days after the marines landed on Iwo Jima he was wounded in the leg and hip by shrapnel. He was returned to the states in April and is stationed at naval hospital in New York.

He wears the Purple Heart, with a gold star, a presidential citation and an American Legion ribbon with three campaign stars.

Control Measures For Jap Beetle Are Available

The county farm agent's office is prepared to furnish residents with information on control measures that may be used to protect plants from the ravages of the Japanese beetle, Ralph P. McHenry, county agent, said yesterday as employees in the difficult task of protecting ripening fruit and plant foliage from the ravages of the beetle.

Recommendations include trapping, spraying and hand picking for control, he stated, adding that sprays of arsenate of lead, hydrated lime or rotenone are effective for protecting plant foliage.

Hand picking or jarring early in the cool of the morning also was offered as a means of destroying large numbers of beetles. Sheets may be placed under the plants to catch the beetles which have been parried or shaken from trees or plants.

DDT To Be Demonstrated
Commenting on the control work McHenry stated that the new wartime insecticide DDT will be demonstrated in the county this year. Research work at the University of Maryland by Dr. E. N. Cory and Dr. George S. Langford has shown, he said, that this material is effective in the difficult task of protecting ripening fruit and plant foliage from the ravages of the beetle.

A small scale demonstration in the county last year showed that sprays containing this material were effective in killing all Japanese beetles hit with it. In addition, the material was unusual in that it killed all beetles walking on foliage covered with the spray, according to McHenry, who said he was well pleased with results obtained in the limited demonstration test made here.

Automatic Traps
Another new development worked out at the University of Maryland and to be demonstrated in the county is the use of automatic traps, McHenry said. He pointed out that workers at the university have been experimenting with such traps for several years with the belief that an automatic trap would be ideal for use on the farm.

A successful trap of this type has been developed and results indicate that if the trap is used along with the new insecticide DDT it is effective in killing from ninety-eight to one hundred per cent of the beetles passing through it.

Police Issue 258 Bicycle Licenses
Only 258 of the 1,700 bicycle owners in this city secured licenses during the week, police reported yesterday afternoon. The present tags expire June 30, officers warned, and only a week remains before the deadline.

Practically all bicycles examined and licensed during the week were in splendid mechanical condition, officers said. Most of the unsuccessful applicants are turned down because of the lack of bells and lights and inadequate brakes, according to Sgt. Raymond R. Johnston.

No tags will be issued today, but officers will be on duty from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m. Monday through Friday next week to complete the issuance of bicycle licenses.

Pfc. R. C. Ritchie Helps Turn Back Jap Attackers

WITH THE TWENTY-FOURTH INFANTRY (VICTORY) DIVISION ON MINDANAO, Private First Class Raleigh G. Ritchie, 428 Hammond street, Westport, Md., a member of a twenty-five man patrol which was attacked five times by a large force of Japs, driven back across a river and forced to stay in enemy territory all night.

Ritchie, fighting with this Victory division's rugged Thirty-fourth Infantry Regiment, was with the patrol sent out to drive across a river and attack friendly troops.

"We hadn't been gone over ten minutes before we ran into a Jap outpost," said Ritchie. "We sneaked in from behind. The four Japs never knew what hit them. They tipped off that there was plenty trouble ahead."

The men fanned out and pushed through the dense undergrowth. They crossed the river and were pinned down by heavy automatic weapons fire. Under covering fire from their only machine gun they were able to withdraw, suffering one casualty. Before a plan could be mapped out they were attacked by a force of over 100 Japs coming in from the flanks.

The clanking of bayonets and the chattering of the excited Japs could be heard nearby. The enemy troops swarmed in from three sides in one of their fanatic charges. The defenders poured a hail of bullets into them, and yellow faces were riddled with hot lead. The attackers were forced to retreat. But they came back once, but four times. Each time they caused some casualties but each time they were repulsed.

It was nearly dark and the men wanted to get back within their lines. But they were several miles from the company and weary of Jap ambushes. The patrol leader made a decision. They would stay there and establish their own perimeter and move back the next morning.

There was no further activity during the night. Apparently, the Japs had been thoroughly whipped. Forty-two were counted dead the next day.

The 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. platoon will fire each Monday at 10:30 a. m. the 5 p. m. to 1 a. m. shift Tuesday at the same time while the 1 a. m. to 9 a. m. platoon will practice Wednesday at 10:30 a. m.

The police range was improved and beautiful this year, Eyerman said, by the sowing of a new lawn and the planting of flowers in the area.

The course to be followed includes ten shots, slow fire, at twenty-five yards; ten shots, time fire, at twenty-five yards and ten shots rapid fire at fifteen yards.

In his annual report, Eyerman recommended that, with a few exceptions, all officers be compelled to make a sixty-five per cent rating in marksmanship with the regulation police revolver and that all probationers qualify as marksmen.
